Cos 1 Reports come in that the Texans are near Béxar, southeast of you, and have split up, with a smaller group moving north.	Cos 2 Opening official communication would legitimize the rebels, and you have orders to defend the town.	Cos 3 You receive reports that a group of 300 to 400 Texans is starting to attack the baggage train, which is carrying hay and grass for the Mexican Army's horses.	Cos 4 Recently the Anglo Colonists under house arrest were accused of firing on troops. The situation could develop into a larger issue with officers in your army divided on how to handle them.
Cos 5 Colonel Ugartechea arrives with over 500 reinforcements. The regulars can be deployed right away.	Cos 6 Your food supplies are running low, and you haven't received enough supplies to withstand a longer siege. You have a small force in the Main Plaza, but the Texans will soon outnumber them.	Austin 1 When Béxar residents Hendrick Arnold and Erastus "Deaf" Smith arrive in camp, you learn that the Mexican Army has fortified the town with new defenses. It's unknown if these defenses were constructed elsewhere around town.	Austin 2 You rethink your choices: Keep up the siege or launch an attack on the town? As the weeks go by, your health declines significantly and continues to deteriorate.
Burleson 3 Erastus "Deaf" Smith arrives in camp with news that the Mexican Army's convoy is quite large and heading toward Béxar. A rumor is spreading that the convoy is carrying money for the Mexican soldiers in town.	Burleson 4 Colonel Ben Milam wants to attack the town and can likely get support from many volunteers. A few Anglo colonists who were under house arrest also arrived in camp, willing to help with an assault.	Burleson 5 Your forces, although on different streets, have established communication channels. Others in the camp have also started joining the forces fighting in town.	Burleson 6 Rumors circulate that morale among the Mexican Army is low, and some of their soldiers are deserting.
